

Life Assembly Welcomes Joil Marbut – Missionary to Ecuador

Joil and his family were called into full time ministry over 15 years ago, which landed them in the jungles of Ecuador. The Marbuts have two main focuses. The first focus, reaching the unreached, planting churches pastored and led by native pastors. Second, searching for and implementing compassionate solutions for chronic social problems found in the communities they pastor. In addition, they have planted dozens of churches, trained dozens of pastors, built bridges, installed water filters and wells and hosted patients in medical clinics.

Two of their most recent projects are Project Reach and The Hope House. Project Reach provides opportunity to “GO” into areas of unreached people, not only in Ecuador, but the entire amazon region of South America. At the Hope House, 11-20 year old Shuar girls receive a high school education and learn the trades of the home while attending the mother church in Sucúa and being involved in ministry through the church and the foundation.
